

COLLABORATION AWARD

This shared award will celebrate the cooperation and/or partnership of at least two community groups or individuals coming together in dealing with conflicts and challenges with conservation, sustainability or protecting the environment where others might have shied away. This award can be for any joint approach to problem-solving among groups or individuals who often have divergent points of views. A concrete example of a solution is a plus. The emphasis should be placed on effective collaboration. There are no time parameters for this award except for one: The example of cooperation can be displayed over any period, but at the very minimum must still have been in play in 2010.

Names of all nominated individuals, groups and/or organizations that have collaborated on this project:

This application submitted by:

Address:

Phone Number:

E-mail Contact:

In the event of recognition, who would receive the award on behalf of the organizations or individuals? (Add as many as are necessary.)

Name:

Address:

Phone Number:

E-mail Contact:

Define the environmental challenge addressed.

Tell how this practice provides stewardship of the environment.

Describe how the partnership developed and why the collaboration is more successful and effective than "going it alone."

Describe how the “work gets done” and the challenges, compromises or lessons learned from the diversity of the partnership.

Please add anything that we have not asked that helps to tell your story.

List any documents, photos or video that you have attached to support this application.

All entries must be received or postmarked by Tuesday, Jan. 24, 2012.

E-mail submission:

You may send nominations as a PDF to sperkins@echovermont.org.

Submit via mail to:

Stephen Perkins, ECHO, 1 College Street, Burlington, VT 05401

Drop off entries in person at:

the Burlington Free Press, 191 College Street, Burlington, or at ECHO, 1 College Street , Burlington.